Overview

Academics

Jarred earned his undergraduate degree in Accounting from Rutgers University in 2015, earning a Bachelor of Science degree in accounting. Upon graduation, he was awarded the Dean's Award for Academic Excellence scholarship from Rutgers Law School. Jarred then went on to attain his Juris Doctorate from Rutgers Law School, graduating with honors in 2018.

Professional Experience

During law school, Jarred served as an intern to the Honorable Mary K. White in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Family Part before, later serving as the law clerk to the Honorable Sandra Lopez in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Family Part. He then went on to work at a family law firm in South Jersey for four years, transitioning to solo practice before joining Helmer, Conley & Kasselmann in 2023.

Jarred's sole focus has always been divorce and family law matters, utilizing his accounting background to maximize client outcomes on divorce and distribution issues and being a tireless advocate in custody matters.

Personal Life

When not practicing law, Jarred likes to spend time with his family. He and his wife are wine enthusiasts and like to travel and explore new vineyards throughout the country.
